

“KIDS VIEWS”

The Larson Gallery presents student artwork in conjunction with their fall exhibition: “City Views.” This exhibition features “views” of urban environments including Yakima’s own City Center seen through the eyes of painters: Julia Ricketts, Amanda Coleman, and illustrator: Anita Lehmann. Local architect (and YVCC grad) Sheri Brockway is also involved.

Students made artwork referencing their ideas and responses to their city and other urban environments. Thus the artwork made for the “Kids Views” project allows us to see their community through their own eyes and creativity. Their work might represent ideas about the future of Yakima, or might reference a local landmark, building or place.

The artwork will be on display in downtown store fronts and windows from October 9 – October 31, 2007

“City Views” is on display at the Larson Gallery through October 19th!

“Kids Views” is made possible by a grant from Coca-Cola Bottling Company and support from Gear-Up and ESD 105.
